PRIVACY NOTICE

Registered members of the European Maritime Law Organisation are entitled to receive details of all EMLO events and other information of interest to members. Please note that where you have a corporate membership, it is your firm or organisation that is registered as the member and you are registered as the principal contact within the firm. Your corporate membership entitles up to four members of your firm per annum to receive direct mailings and to attend EMLO events.

We keep details of your current contact address and phone/fax numbers in order to stay in touch with you and provide you with mailings of EMLO events, EMLO subscription reminders and other matters related to the business of EMLO and its members. Your details are kept by the principal officers, including the Secretary General, the Treasurer and other members of the Board, the membership secretary, and by third party conference organisers appointed by the EMLO Board as necessary to market, organise and manage EMLO events on EMLO's and its members' behalf.

You can contact the membership secretary at any time to notify us of any changes or deletions require to your address and other contact details.

We undertake to use every reasonable effort appropriate for an association of this sort to keep all personal data relating to you as defined in the Data Protection Directive in accordance with the relevant data protection principles, and in particular to restrict our and our appointed organisers' use of such data solely to the needs of furthering the business of EMLO in the collective interests of all its members as described above. Where necessary we may transfer data outside the EEA for the purpose of running the organisation or specific conferences and events.
